VOLUNTARY ANNOUNCEMENT

CHINASOFT SIGNS WITH TENCENT WEBANK AND ADVANCES INTO THE TRILLION DOLLAR ENTERPRISE LEVEL INTERNET BANKING MARKET

Chinasoft (hereinafter referred to as “Chinasoft” or “the Company”) voluntarily announced this release so the public is aware of the latest information.

Chinasoft announced that it has recently signed with the national’s first private owned Internet bank, Shenzhen Qianhai Weizhong Bank (hereinafter referred to as “Tencent WeBank”), as it successfully enters into the trillion dollar enterprise IT services market for Internet finance.

The Company will use its proprietary TOPLINK product to provide customers with access to product card organizations (supporting UnionPay, VISA, Mastercard, JCB, AE, and other card organizations) and data preparation system. This partnership exemplifies the Company’s traditional product advantages even as it enters into the Internet finance field. It can handle the demands of large IT systems data, spike during peak, and the real time demand of the Internet finance field.

This successful signing with Tencent WeBank diversifies and strengthens the cooperation between Tencent and the Company, and shows that the Company’s technological capabilities and top quality services have been recognized by the Internet giant. It is predicted that in the future there will be more cooperation with Tencent WeBank. On one hand, this is a breakthrough in the Tencent financial business (came right after the Company became the biggest IT services provider of Tencent gaming). On the other hand, this successful cooperation has set a good precedent for Internet banks and helped Chinasoft laid a good foundation in this field.

The development of Internet finance will require a lot of IT work. As traditional financial institutes transform to match different Internet platforms (P2P, small loads, crowd funding, and etc.), they will also need IT solutions. In the future, the Company will have more Internet finance related IT services, catch the wave of China's Internet financial market growth, and create more value for its shareholders.
